"What becomes of the straw hat?" Asks an inquiring reporter. A national publication says thousands find their way to the vaudeville stage to be smashed one a day, two a day or three a day, depending upon the number of times that hat-wrecking comedians performs. Which may or may not be true, but this much is apparent, that man is quite as much a slave to style as woman.

"Man yields to custom as he bows to fate, In all things ruled; mind, body and estate." When September 15 comes he puts away his straw hat, though tropical weather prevails.

Modestly enough he calls himself the "Acting Mayor," and he has been "acting" in a way that is causing the citizens of that big town to rub their eyes in wonder and astonishment.

Without the suggestion of a flare of trumpets, he has started an economy drive; and, wonder of wonders, he is accomplishing something. He has cut his own salary from $40,000 to $25,000; he has slashed all of the appointive commissioners from $15,000 to $12,000; but he says he will not touch any city employees getting less than $2,000 a year, "because the is a tragedy." Then new mayor's activities have caused the publication of the pay of many other city officials with ornamental titles, whose sal- When the long race is run aries are greater than that paid to the Justices of the United States And all the tasks are done, Supreme court. It is a pear tree and it stands beside a road looking down over a city. Not much of a tree. Scraggled and misshapen. Never pruned, and its crop is weazened and scanty. But I never see it without remembering something it did when my heart was sore.

My home burned and all I had went up in flames. And not only my home, but the homes of all my neighbors, and the homes of hundreds of people I didn't know. The fire licked over the hills and gorged itself on human happiness and left a smoking, disheartening waste behind it. We were all broken together. Go Up Tuesday

Everything is in readiness for the erection of the tabernacle tent for the city wide revival on the Carnegie grounds, South Mill street, it is announced.

Tuesday morning at o'clock there are expected to be at least two hundred volunteer workers on the grounds to put the steel frame into position and stretch the canvas top and sides over it.

The workers will represent churches of the city and one will see the ministers of the congregations in overalls with saw and hammer, working right along with the carpenters and electricians

It is expected that the workers will complete the place of worship by Tuesday evening and sing the Doxology as the sun goes to rest. Dinner will be served the workers at noon.

Those old tales about the days when the Slippery Rock valley was dotted with oil derricks keep cropping out frequently. There was a day you know when oil was produced out there and brought as high as ten dollars a barrel in New

One well brought in was a mystery well. As a rule oil was struck about four hundred feet below the surface. This particular well was dry at four hundred feet and the drillers went on down. At six hundred feet they struck a gusher and according to the stores the oil flooded the valley leading into the Slippery Rock and covered everything from bank to bank.

Cupidity is supposed to have ruined the well. Not satisfied with the unusual flow, the drillers determined to drop a shot down and get a gusher that would stand as a mark. They dropped the shot and promptly blew the bottom out of the pool.

The flow disappeared and for years thereafter drillers sought to tap the mysterious pool of oil, supposed to be of a finer grade than anything that had been produced. This was a few years after the Civil war. Sporadically some oil prospector has been after the liquid gold that disappeared and some of these days some one may yet pick it up. What a day.
